Mass media is based on the principle that "dog bites man" is not a sellable story, but "man bites dog" is. We need to sell a different narrative on migration.

Syrian Migrants: "As Syrian refugees, we were honoured to take part in community service initiatives to give back to the communities that have so warmly taken us in."

Provide here any other information you think relevant

Combating xenophobia cannot be achieved by any one actor and only at the national level. This is best achieved when: (i) national policy making and actual implementation with local authorities are addressed together; (ii) a multi-stakeholder approach that is based on local alliances involving all key actors and particularly migrants and diaspora, with the latter being empowered to actively participate on an equal playing field.

To ensure social inclusion, there is a need to understand the dynamics of how migrants bond, which communities they go to, and what incentives are needed to encourage them to integrate with locals, and vice versa.
